Adobe Systems Canada Scholarship

INTRODUCTION

Adobe Systems was founded in 1982 by Charles Geschke and John Warnock. Adobe is now one of the world's largest and most diversified software companies with a reputation for excellence and a portfolio containing many of the most respected and recognizable software brands. The same passion Adobe brings to revolutionizing how people engage with ideas and information can be found in their work in communities worldwide.

At Adobe, their community activities are driven by both the Adobe Foundation and Adobe Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) teams. Together, they support and foster innovative programs and strategic partnerships that help people express their ideas and positively impact their local communities. They primarily invest in organizations that are addressing arts and creativity; education; and youth service issues.

In 2001, when Adobe Systems acquired Ottawa-based software company Accelio (formerly JetForm) they began investing in the education and training of young engineering and computer science students through the Adobe Systems scholarship.

The donor wishes to thank the Government of Ontario for its contribution under its matching program. This scholarship was formerly named the John Gleed Jetform Scholarship.

PURPOSE OF FUND

To provide financial assistance to a student in the Faculty of Engineering at the University of Ottawa who best exemplifies the leadership and pioneering spirit of Adobe founders Charles Geschke and John Warnock as well as JetForm founder John Gleed.
